

HEARD HER FORTUNE TELLER AND WENT INSANE.

After a Visit to a Clairvoyant, Mrs. Brokeseh Began to Act Queerly.

She Imagined Her Husband, Who Died Two Years Ago, Was to Return to Her.

DECLARED SHE TALKED WITH HIM.

Acting Upon His Advice, as She Thought She Refused to Take the Doctor's Medicine. The Police Are Looking for the Fortune Teller.

Five days ago Mrs. Elizabeth Brokeseh had her fortune told by a woman who lives in East New York. An hour after Mrs. Brokeseh had heard all about her past, present and future she returned to her home at Stone and New Lots avenues, Brooklyn, and started her four children by announcing that she had seen their father.

"He is coming back to us," she continued, "and we will all be happy together." The children knew that their father had been dead for two years or more, and as a natural sequence they began to put questions to their mother. Her answers satisfied them that she was ill, and they told the neighbors about it.

Mrs. Brokeseh's house is close to the corner of Stone and New Lots avenues, and the only doctor within a mile of the house is Dr. Israel Kaufman, of No. 432 Stone avenue. On the advice of the neighbors, the oldest Brokeseh boy hurried to Dr. Kaufman's and told him that Mrs. Brokeseh was out of her head.

When the physician called at the house he found the woman in bed. She greeted him pleasantly and told him that she was very nervous. He asked her a few questions and he answered that her condition was not serious. After prescribing for her he left the house.

The next morning he called again. He found her patient seated in the parlor and apparently in the very best of spirits. The doctor congratulated her and expressed the opinion that his prescription was responsible for the improvement in her condition.

"But I didn't take your medicine," she replied. "My dead husband knocked on the wall last night and told me not to work. This morning I felt a great deal better."

The astonished physician asked her what she meant, and she told him of her visit to the fortune teller. She said that she had given the woman twenty-five cents, and in return had received a deal of information about the late Mr. Brokeseh. Her incoherent statements roused the doctor's suspicions, and he asked her to give him the name and address of the clairvoyant. This the woman refused to do.

Wednesday Dr. Kaufman paid another visit to the house, and found the woman still talking about her interview with her husband. He questioned the children and the neighbors. Satisfied that Mrs. Brokeseh was out of her head, he ordered the police to call at the station and bring the woman to the station.

The youngest child, a two-year-old boy, named Frank, accompanied her. From the station house the woman was taken to the Flatbush Insane Asylum. Frank refused to leave his mother, and was allowed to accompany her.

The late Mr. Brokeseh was a dairyman, and at the time of his death had built up a profitable business. After his death the widow continued the business with the assistance of her oldest boy, Daniel, who is twelve years of age. There are two other boys, Jacob and George.

The three boys are still at their home and the woman who lives in the neighborhood has been placed in charge of the dairy. Another neighbor is managing the dairy. Mrs. Brokeseh is forty-seven years old, and, according to the neighbors, has money in the bank.

The police are trying to locate the mysterious fortune teller.

FERRY AND BRIDGE AGREE.

The Question of Property for the New East River Structure Settled at a Conference.

After a consultation with the Board of Directors of the Brooklyn and New York Ferry Company, of which J. J. O'Donohue is the president, and President Andrew D. Baird, of the new East River Bridge Commission, yesterday morning, the disagreement in the preliminary work of the Commission was removed. The conference was held in the office of the ferry company, foot of Broadway, Williamsburg. President Baird was accompanied by counsel to the Commission, H. C. M. Ingraham, while ex-Senator O'Connor looked on the interests of the ferry company.

As a result of the conference the Commission agrees to provide the ferry company with a suitable store place for its boats on the New York side of the East River, in return for the property owned by the ferry company, near the foot of Delancey street. When the line for the new bridge was laid out, the Commission was not aware that the ferry company owned any property in the vicinity of the place selected for the New York pier. It was supposed that the property was owned by the City of New York.

A bill will now be introduced in the assembly, according to Counselor Ingraham, whereby the City of New York will agree to give up a plot of land to the ferry company in return for the land needed by the Commission. The land is a small property at the foot of Grand street, New York.

STOPPED WITHIN TEN FEET.

Bridge Train Narrowly Escapes Collision With a Derailed Engine.

There was a block of nearly half an hour the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday morning owing to the derailing of a switch engine near the signal box on the Brooklyn side. It occurred at 10:45 a. m. The engine had started a train toward New York and was returning to the station when the switch engine east of the signal box broke, and the locomotive was thrown partly onto the southern track.

A train which was being hauled over from New York by the cable was stopped within ten feet of the derailed engine. A good many passengers were imprisoned in five or six trains, but the rush was over the inconvenience did not occasion much complaint.

Superintendent Martin, with about a dozen men soon "jacked" the switch engine back on the rails, a new switch point was put in and traffic was resumed at 11:15. Many passengers walked to this city from Brooklyn while the repairs were being made.

Tries to Kill Civil Service.

Albany, April 9.—Further indications of the proposed Republican raid on the Brooklyn treasury were given in the Senate this afternoon. At that time a brazen attempt was made to kill the bill providing an appropriation of $10,000 for the Civil Service Commission. It was admitted that withholding this money would destroy the efficiency of the Board, but the Platt machine showed an absolute indifference to the fate of the bill. It was favored, earnestly and the fight was made by Senators Fild, Brush, Wray and Gallagher. The latter asserted that the machine element in both political parties in Brooklyn was against civil service reform. The argument was a heated one for fully an hour. Finally Senator Wieman's motion to strike out the enacting clause of the bill was defeated by a vote of 19 to 17. Senator Ellsworth, the Republican leader, said there would be no objection to the bill if it was made permissive instead of mandatory. It was shown that if such a change was made the Board of Estimate could refuse to make the necessary appropriation, and letters were read from Mr. Orr and Mr. Wallace to the effect that if the appropriation were not made the Civil Service Commission would have to stop its work. The bill was finally laid aside.

During the day four bills were received from the Mayor with his approval. They were Senator Wray's, transferring the Museum Hall to the Board of Education; Senator Brush's, for providing for the expenditure of $160,000 for the improvement of the City Hall; also his bill allowing the Health Board to buy necessary articles to the amount of $1,000 in emergency cases without advertising, and Senator Gallagher's bill exempting Adams street from railroads.

Among the bills reported favorably from the committee were these: Senator Coffey's providing for the removal of obstructions from Gravesend avenue, currently known as the fight between the Nassau Electric and the Old Culver road; Senator Wieman's, taxing the subway railroads three per cent for the benefit of the city treasury.

The Assembly passed to-day Mr. Perkins' bill appropriating $40,000 for the repairing of the Twenty-third Regiment armory, so as to make it suitable for the Gatling gun company. Also Mr. Brennan's bill authorizing Brooklyn to spend $100,000 for a public library whenever the same amount shall have been subscribed by citizens.

Assemblyman Foster introduced a resolution during the session providing for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate the Twenty-third Street Ferry Company, for the purpose of seeing if lower fares could not be secured. It was sent to the Committee on Ways and Means, which would seem to indicate an intention to prevent the proposed investigation.

Another Greater New York bill was brought out by Assemblyman Brennan to-day. It is the Andrews bill in substance and provides that the charter shall be submitted to the people. If they reject it that is to end consolidation, unless the next Legislature sees fit to take further action. Mr. McKeehan objected to the introduction of the bill, but it will be put in as a substitute in the committee. The Lexow bill is expected to be here to-morrow with the action of the Mayors of both cities endorsed upon it. The object of the Brennan bill is simply to make mischief.

BLIND PASTOR RESIGNED.

Officers of the Church Wanted Him to Vacate, but the Members Asked That He Remain.

Hicksville, L. I., April 9.—There is a big row in the First Reformed Church here on account of the resignation of the church pastor, Rev. Ernest Gutwiler. The members of the church requested the pastor to hand in his resignation and he did so, and it was promptly accepted, to take effect on October 1st.

The larger portion of the congregation objected to the proceedings, and at once circulated a petition to have the pastor retained. At the same time another petition was put in circulation to sustain the action of the Consistory. At present the petition in favor of the dominie is considerably longer than the other, and will likely result in allowing him to withdraw his resignation.

The Rev. Mr. Gutwiler was formerly pastor of the First Reformed Church in Long Island City, but resigned to take up mission work at this place. He has been very successful, in spite of the fact that he is blind. He has succeeded in getting a handsome church edifice erected and has a very large membership.

The cause of the trouble is attributed to his being too outspoken. The members said that the officers acted without authority when they asked for Pastor Gutwiler's resignation.

The Nova Classis of Long Island has refused to accept the resignation, and has appointed a committee to investigate the matter.

A BASKET BALL TOURNAMENT.

Championship Interclub Series to Be Held in Brooklyn.

A tournament for the basket ball championship of America has been arranged under the auspices of the Brooklyn Basket Ball Club, to be held on Friday evening, April 24, at the Clermont Avenue rink, Brooklyn.

The purpose of the tournament is to determine which team can be termed champion for 1896, and as several of the strongest teams in this section have already entered, the games should be productive of the most spirited competition.

The duration of the first and second rounds will be fifteen minutes each, while the third round will be twenty minutes. A handsome banner will be presented to the winning team.

Entries close April 20, with A. F. Copeland, 222 West 125th street, New York, as the referee. The tournament will be held at the foot of Grand street, New York.

Successful Cigar-makers' Strike.

Two hundred girls and a number of men employed at the Newark Cigar Factory, Seventy-third street and Second avenue, went on strike yesterday against a 25 per cent reduction in wages. It is claimed by the strikers that under the reduced wage they would have been earning only ninety cents a day. Out of this men with families had to pay for a month for the rent of a room in a tenement house, and the women had to pay for the rent of a room in a tenement house. The strike was broken by the reduction in wages was withdrawn and strikers returned to work.

REVENUE OFFICERS ARREST A WOMAN.

Mrs. Coyle Accused of Manufacturing Cigars Without a Government License.

Miquel Lorente, a Well-Known Dealer, Also Taken into Custody for Complicity.

HER ILLEGAL OUTFIT TAKEN AWAY.

She Is Thought to Have Turned Out 100 Fine Cigars a Day—An Excess of 6,000 Found in Lorente's Factory.

Bail Fixed at $500.

A very important and unusual arrest was made yesterday afternoon by Deputy Collectors of Internal Revenue Mullen and Hawkins.

Mrs. Christina Coyle was arrested for manufacturing cigars. It is alleged, illicitly at No. 12 Garrison street, Brooklyn. The full outfit—cigars, tobacco, tools and bench—was seized.

Mrs. Coyle had no assistants. It is thought she turned out a hundred high-class cigars each day. While the workmanship is only fair, the tobacco used is the very best, and as yet the officials have not succeeded in ascertaining the source of the supply.

The discovery of two boxes, unstamped, but bearing the factory name of Miquel Lorente, a duty and license manufacturer, led to an examination of Lorente's factory.

An excess of six thousand cigars was found not entered in the book provided for that purpose by the Government, in which entries are made of cigars manufactured and material purchased. Both Lorente and Mrs. Coyle were placed under arrest and bail fixed at $500 each.

The prisoners were taken before the Collector of Internal Revenue. The woman went through the ordeal with a composed and cheerful countenance, and even displayed a manner of indifference to the proceedings. Lorente stoutly asserted his innocence of criminal intent, and was visibly affected, breaking down before the Commissioner when it was announced that he would have to go to jail.

His story was that discrepancies in his Government book were due to the carelessness of his bookkeeper. The authorities do not believe this story, as cigar makers are paid entirely by piece work, the custom being to pay the met on Saturday night. This practice renders it possible to keep an absolute check on the number of cigars which should be reported.

Lorente is a Spaniard and well connected. His factory is at No. 41 Fulton street, connecting with his living apartment, at No. 29.

Mrs. Coyle is Spanish by descent, but was born in this country. She speaks both English and Spanish fluently. The Collector is making special efforts to detect and stop further illicit manufacturing in his district.

CROPPERS AT HEMPSTEAD.

Several Farms Marred the Meadow Brook Hunt—Steepchaser Perambulator Ruined.

Hempstead, April 9.—There were several accidents this afternoon during the hunt of the Meadow Brook Club. Mrs. James L. Kernochan's brother, Maxwell Stevenson, was tumbled from his mount at the first fence and narrowly escaped serious injury.

Foreman Thomas Anderson, of the clubhouse, assisted him to remount and he was able to finish.

When hearing the finish George Stonebridge's mount struck a fence and knocked several lengths of the following. The two riders, accompanied by the two traps, crossed the bridge over its head. William C. Hayes also had a fall, his horse refusing a jump and unseating him, but without injury.

Perambulator, Harry Page's steepchaser, broke down just at the finish and he will be useless to the young clubman. The horse was very valuable.

The run to-day was from Island Trees to Plainfield Church, where they checked, and then west through East Meadow and finishing at Hempstead farm, covering a distance of fourteen miles. Maxwell Stevenson distinguished himself by safely taking a stiff picket fence, and Mrs. Kernochan had a neck and collar with M. F. H. Ralph N. Ellis to the kill, the latter finally winning.

The party out to-day, among whom were W. W. Hazard, Harry Page, Maxwell Stevenson, Rowley Cottenet, the Col. Robert, and the Rev. Mr. Kenneby, Ralph N. Ellis, E. Willard Roby, William C. Hayes, Charles Garland, Mr. J. E. S. Hadden and Mrs. J. E. S. Hadden.

The next meet will be at Manhasset Hill, Saturday, after which a breakfast will be served at the clubhouse.

THE THIN MAN WAS AWAKE.

He Astonished Passengers by Grabbing the Mr. Lutkins's Diamond Pin.

A thin, delicate, little man got on a Seventh avenue car in Brooklyn last night. He closed his eyes and several passengers thought he was going to faint or die in a few minutes. But he was very much awake.

Clifford L. Lutkins, of No. 141 Berkeley place, got on the car, and the thin little man grabbed at his diamond pin. He failed to get it, and then jumped from the car. Mr. Lutkins chased him, but he escaped.

Receiver Cannot Compromise. The directors of the defunct Commercial Bank, of Brooklyn, illegally paid out $11,870.40 as dividends. Receiver Hyman yesterday asked leave to compromise suits for the same for $7,000, but Justice Clemon said he could not permit it, because the depositors had opposed the motion.

Judge Smyth, of the Supreme Court, has extended the receivership of John O'Connell, of New Rochelle, for William Belden, formerly a wealthy Wall Street operator, who collected a claim of Davis, Waters & Co., who obtained a judgment against Mr. Belden for $100,000 in September 22, 1892. The claim was for $100,000.

Samuel V. Heimberger has been appointed receiver in supplementary proceedings for Julius B. Kippling, of No. 54 West 125th street, on the application of Erdman, Levy & Mayer, attorneys of Charles W. Wood, Esq., of No. 100 Broadway, who was for some time a special partner in the business for $23,000.

The Sheriff yesterday received an execution for $3,000 against Charles H. K. Smith, of No. 100 Broadway, in favor of Foster, Skinner & Raymond.

The Sheriff yesterday received two executions for $1,000 against Robert H. Booth, junior, of No. 91 Wall street, who failed two months ago, in favor of the Bank of the State of New York, and a note of the H. W. Stone Lumber Company, of New Haven, and a draft of William D. Wheelwright & Co. for $10,000, in favor of the same bank, against Lombard, Ayres & Co., oil and lumber merchants, of No. 12 Broadway, who failed in December last. In favor of Louis Eisenstein, a claim which has been in litigation several years.

A PANIC IN A SCHOOL.

Escaping Steam Alarmed the Pupils, Who Imagined the Building Was on Fire.

The cry of "Fire!" started by some of the female pupils in Grammar School No. 10, at Seventh avenue and Seventeenth street, Brooklyn, caused a small-sized panic shortly before noon on Wednesday. The scare was due to the noise made by the steam passing through a radiator in one of the rooms on the second floor. To some of the children it seemed as if an explosion had taken place, and this belief was strengthened when a quantity of steam escaped from the radiator.

In the excitement all discipline was forgotten. The teachers commanded the pupils to remain seated, but the girls, led by Principal Haaren, who heard the noise, rushed in and attempted to restore order, but all to no purpose. Even the famous one-hill-walker failed to calm the girls.

To make matters worse, many of the children rushed for one exit on Seventeenth street, and there was a jam in the doorway. This, however, was only momentary, the teachers and principal taking vigorous measures to have the girls safely cleared.

While the confusion was at its height Janitor Cominsky and his assistant, Mr. Taylor, examined the radiator. Nothing of consequence was found, and the girls were taken to their rooms. A number of them, however, had run into the street. Instead of returning to their seats, they were sent to the principal's office. When they got back to school after recess all were punished by being kept in school an hour or two after the regular time.

MINNIE'S ARTLESS WAYS.

How Miss Arnett, Who Figured in the Winkemeyer Divorce Suit, Impressed a Baltimore Preacher.

The testimony in Mrs. Winkemeyer's suit for divorce against Christian P. Winkemeyer, which was taken by a commission in Baltimore, had been taken in the city of Baltimore. The principal witness there was the Rev. J. P. Fugate, who owned the house which Winkemeyer rented for Minnie Arnett. He said the young woman told him she was the wife of a Brooklyn candy manufacturer, who needed the balcony of Maryland to store his candy.

Dr. Fugate, who is a patriarch past the S. d. age, was asked to describe Minnie, and he replied: "I don't look at an old man and I don't look at a woman folk so much as I did fifty years ago. There was one thing about Miss Arnett that I liked very much, and that was her artless, simple ways—as natural as a five-year-old girl."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

He was asked if he had any other impression of her, and he replied: "I had no other impression of her, and I had no other impression of her."

CANDIDATES IN THE DARK.

Brooklyn Politicians at Sea Over the Deputy Excise Commissioner.

Colonel Michell, a Friend of Commissioner Lyman, Seems to Have the Call.

Aspirants for the Place and Their Backers Go to the Capitol to Present Their Claims—Active Politicians Said to Be Barred.

Brooklyn politicians are wondering who will be appointed as deputy excise commissioner in the new county. Last night the backers of the various candidates admitted that they were in the dark as to the probable outcome of the contest.

There was a feeling, however, that Colonel Henry W. Michell, of the Fourteenth Regiment, would secure the honor. The Colonel went to Albany yesterday to see Colonel Lyman, who is an old friend of his. They first became acquainted in Libby Prison and have been fast friends ever since.

John M. Ward, chief clerk at the Comptroller's office, went to Albany, accompanied by Comptroller Palmer, who went there in his behalf. County Clerk Henry C. Saffin called on Colonel Lyman to say something in favor of his man, Frank F. Schulz. It is said, however, that he received little encouragement. An Albany dispatch says Colonel Lyman stated that he had no objection to naming any man, but that he would appoint an active politician as deputy for the Brooklyn district.

The friends of Edward H. M. Roehr seemed to be confident that he would be appointed. The fact that Speaker Fish was in Brooklyn last night meant that he would be appointed.

The Wurster-Willis people were equally confident that Jacob Brenner would be appointed.

They Watched Colton Grab Carman by the Throat and Relieve Him of His Watch and Diamond.

John E. Carman, a storekeeper of Woodbury, L. I., was held up and robbed of his diamond pin and gold watch and chain by Theodore Colton, in front of No. 40 Broadway, Williamsburg, shortly after 2 a. m. yesterday. The robbery was witnessed by Houndsman Couch and Policeman Maxwell, of the Clymer Street Station, who were concealed in a doorway on the opposite side of the street. The officers noticed Carman and Colton coming toward the station, and Colton, seeing them, suddenly stopped, and, according to the police, seized Carman by the throat, running him up against a telephone pole, rifled his pockets and then removed his diamond pin. The tightened grasp Colton had on the throat of his victim prevented him making any outcry.

Both the roundsman and Maxwell then ran across the street and seized Colton before he could escape. Carman's gold watch and chain and diamond pin were found on the thief. Carman, who was taken to the station, was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.

Carman had no recollection of the robbery and told the court that he left his watch and chain at home. He was charged with the robbery, and Colton was charged with the robbery and the possession of stolen goods.